Through the Amadeus system, travel agencies and airline offices are able to make bookings on about 500 airlines, representing some 95 percent of the world's scheduled airline seats. More than 250,000 terminals are installed at airline's airport ticket offices, city ticket offices and travel agencies.

The system also provides access to more than 50,000 hotels, 50 car rental companies, and newer provider groups such as ferry, rail, cruise, insurance providers and tour operators.

In 2001 almost 400 million billable bookings were processed by Amadeus. Recently Amadeus also started to make its GDS services available via the Internet, entering the modern B2B, B2C and Application Service Provider (ASP) market.

Amadeus and Secaron AG Team up to enhance Security and Customer Satisfaction

As a knowledge-driven and solution-oriented consulting company specialised in e.security for e.commerce-platforms, Secaron AG is performing a comprehensive conceptual security analysis combined with a series of security surveys for Amadeus on an ongoing basis.

The overall result of the security analysis is a better understanding of the strong relationship between marketing and customer requirements.

Detailed security surveys evaluate the precise functional and security capabilities of the developed technical solutions. They often pinpoint starting points for improving customer satisfaction while maintaining a high level of security.

Amadeus and Secaron AG team up to enhance security and customer satisfaction.

“The internet offers great opportunities but also challenges our company to adapt the former host based security to a mobile world.

In this context, information security and data protection become crucial functional requirements.”
